2 Provisions applicable to all areas of cooperation

2.1 General provisions

The General Terms and Conditions of Business Cooperation with Zavarovalnica Sava, d.d. (hereinafter: Terms of Cooperation) specifically regulate or supplement, in terms of substance, the legal relationships arising from the business cooperation between the Client and the Provider. The Terms of Cooperation shall be an integral part of any order, whereby the Client does not recognise in advance any general terms and conditions of the Provider. Any operating conditions provided upon delivery of the order in paper or electronic form shall be without any legal effect unless the Client confirms them in writing beforehand.

In order to avoid any doubt, the offer, confirmation or execution of the order itself is considered as the Provider's acceptance of the Terms of Cooperation, with which it fully agrees and confirms that it is familiarised with their content. The Client reserves the right to determine special conditions which apply over the respective Terms of Cooperation, and this is specifically defined in each order.

When the Provider accepts the order, it explicitly agrees that it is bound by the same Terms of Cooperation in a business relationship that apply on the day of the start of the individual order execution and are published on the Client's website: <https://www.zav-sava.si/sl-si/o-nas/odgovorno-poslovanje/do-deleznikov/>.

The Provider is aware of the fact that individual members of the Sava Insurance Group may be public limited companies listed on a stock exchange and, therefore, they are subject to special rules regarding the protection of inside information in accordance with the provisions of the applicable Financial Instruments Market Act. The Provider undertakes to protect the obtained inside information as a business secret, in accordance with the provisions of applicable law and any additional instructions of the Client or instructions of the company, which is a public joint-stock company, and will not misuse it for its own account or for the account of third parties.

The Provider shall perform the work professionally correctly, in accordance with the applicable regulations, standards and practice of the profession.

Unless otherwise agreed upon order:

- the deadline for fulfilling the obligations is an essential component of the order;
- working days shall be considered days from Monday to Friday (8:00–16:00).

In order to fulfil the obligations under the order, the Provider may, as subcontractors, engage its external professional associates upon a written consent of the Client. The Provider is liable for the implementation of work or services as if they were fully executed by it. The Provider is obliged to pay its subcontractors for the work performed. If it fails to do so, the Client is entitled to directly transfer the payment to the Provider's subcontractors.

2.2 Demand, supply and order

Offers are free of charge and non-binding for the Client. By submitting an offer, the Tenderer confirms that it is aware of the possibility for the Client to use its offer in order to prepare the needs, requirements and scope of the order. The Tenderer hereby authorises the Client to freely dispose of the content and supporting documentation of the offer and agrees that only the information on the Tenderer and the prices shall be considered as confidential information.

An offer shall contain at least: the subject, its quality, quantity and price, payment terms, deadline and the delivery method of the subject of the order. Unless otherwise stated in the demand, the deadline for delivery of the offer is two (2) working days from the day of receipt of the demand. The Provider is bound by the offer until the expiry of its validity period, in which the period cannot be shorter than fourteen (14) days. The offer is considered accepted if the Client confirms it in full and without any written proposals for change or amendment before the expiration of its validity.

In the event of a demand or tender, the Client shall reserve the right to:

- decline all the tenderers,
- not be obliged to give an explanation in case of non-acceptance of the offer,
- negotiate the price after the receipt of an offer,
- not be obliged to accept the items listed in the offer as an option,
- place the order in sections,
- not inform unsuccessful tenderers about the result.

The Client shall place orders to the Provider in writing. Changes or amendments to the orders are valid only if the Client confirms them in writing. The order shall include the exact address of the Provider, the subject, its quality and quantity, the preferred delivery dates and other terms required by the Provider to be able to provide correct and undisturbed service.

The Provider is obliged to confirm receipt of the order to the Client in writing within two (2) working days after the date of the issue of the order. Otherwise, the Client considers that the Provider agrees with the terms of the order and accepts the order in full, or the Client reserves the right to cancel the order without any liability. Cancellation of an order is considered timely if it is sent to the Provider before the Client receives confirmation of the order from the Provider.

Any oral agreements must be confirmed by the Client in writing, otherwise they shall not be valid. This also applies to all oral agreements after the conclusion of an order, especially those that change or supplement the order or these Terms of Cooperation.

In order to guarantee the elimination of defects during the warranty period, the Client may require the presentation of a bank guarantee (or any other appropriate and legally valid form of insurance) for an individual order.

When the Provider accepts the order, the order is concluded and becomes mutually binding, and the Terms of Cooperation become an integral part of the order.

2.3 Fulfilment of obligations and acceptance of goods or services

The Provider is obliged to fulfil its obligation in accordance with the terms of the order. The fulfilment of obligations is usually carried out directly to the Client and/or to a specific location defined in advance unless otherwise agreed in the order.

The Provider is obliged to immediately notify the Client of any obstacle that would cause a delay in fulfilling the obligation. The decisive factor for the timeliness of the fulfilment of the obligation is the acceptance of the goods or services at the agreed location, which, unless otherwise agreed in writing, represents the registered address (registered office) of the Client.

The acceptance of the goods or services is implemented by signing the receipt document. The receipt document must show: type of goods or services, quantity, date and place of acceptance, order and receipt document number, name and surname of the Provider's and Client's representative, all written in CAPITAL LETTERS. The signed receipt document is used by the Provider as the basis for issuing an invoice.

2.4 Payment and terms of payment

The price and terms of payment are agreed individually upon each order. The agreed price is final, and the Provider shall not have the right to modify it unilaterally. Unless otherwise stipulated in the order, the price shall include delivery and transport to the location of delivery stated in the order, including the packaging costs.

The invoice is sent to the Client immediately or no later than two (2) working days after receipt and must contain all information about the order, otherwise the Client may extend the payment deadline for the time of delay. The invoice must comply with the requirements of the applicable legislation; in addition, the Provider must indicate on the invoice the order number and order information and attach a copy of the receipt document.

The Provider undertakes to issue invoices in electronic form to the agreed address of the Client indicated in the order. Only exceptionally can the invoice be sent in paper form.

The Client shall reject the invoice not issued in accordance with the applicable legislation and/or the Client's instructions. In this case, it shall be considered that the invoice has not been issued and that the payment deadline has not started to run.

Payment is made in accordance with the conditions specified in the order. The invoice payment deadline begins on the day when the Client fully accepts the goods and services and receives the invoice.

The Client shall settle its obligation by transferring the invoiced amount to the Provider's transaction account or by offsetting (compensation).

2.5 Place of destination and passing of risk of destruction or damage

The goods or services supplied by the Provider must comply with the applicable standard, and safety, environmental and other regulations. The Provider shall provide the Client with all necessary documents relating to the goods and services (construction plans, installation and assembly instructions, instructions for use and maintenance, etc.). All documents submitted by the Provider shall be written in the Slovenian language and in other languages, if so requested by the Client.

In the case of fulfilling the obligations involving installation or assembly, and in the case of services, the risk of destruction or damage passes to the Client on the day of acceptance, and in other cases on the day of arrival at the destination.

The Provider shall be liable for any damage to the goods caused by poor packaging. The Provider must remove all transport, sales and service packaging at its own expense. Unless otherwise agreed, the Provider will reimburse the Client for the cost of returned packaging that can be reused.

The Provider shall warn the Client of possible production of hazardous waste related to the respective supplied goods and services and shall separately define the way and possible disposal options. At the request of the Client, the Provider is obliged to take over the waste created during the eligible use of goods and services free of charge. If the Provider refuses to take over such waste or if such acceptance is not possible, the Client shall remove the waste and the costs of the removal are borne by the Provider.

2.6 Special provisions regarding the order execution

If the subject of the order is the acquired work, the Provider must perform the work according to the approved technical documentation and use the materials the quality of which has been previously confirmed by the Client.

Before the commencement of work, the Provider shall deliver supporting documents on the material to the Client for inspection and validation (technical approvals, certificates, declarations of performance, etc.) for all incorporated materials or, if necessary, depending on the nature of the order and agreement, as well as material samples.

The Provider is obliged to keep a work log of performed tasks. Upon completion of all works, the Provider shall inform the Client that the works have been fully completed and invite it to inspect the works. Duties and responsibilities in relation to the fulfilment of protective measures are assumed by the Provider itself, in addition to which it is obliged to ensure the supervision and management of its employees.

2.7 Quality, complaint and warranty

The quality and quantity of the goods and services delivered shall be determined by the parties at the place of delivery through a receipt document.

The Provider guarantees that the delivered goods and services meet the specified requirements and do not contain defects or deficiencies that would reduce its value or usability.

For any defect or deficiency in the delivered goods and services, the Client will submit a complaint to the Provider in writing (as an e-mail or complaint report) no later than eight (8) days after the acceptance of the goods and services.

The Client shall notify the Provider about hidden defects immediately after it discovers them and no later than six (6) months after the acceptance. The notification of the hidden defect shall include a description of the defect and a demand addressed to the Provider to rectify the defect.

The Provider shall send a written response to the Client regarding the complaint or a notification of the defect within two (2) working days from the date of the receipt of the complaint or the notification of the defect.

The Provider is obliged to eliminate the deficiency or defect within a reasonable deadline defined by the Client. If the Provider fails to eliminate the defect or deficiency within a reasonable deadline, it shall supply new/replacement goods or services at its own expense.

The Client is entitled to withhold payment until the defect or deficiency is eliminated. During the warranty period, the Client may withhold payment of up to 10% of the value of the order without interest as a guarantee for warranty claims. If the payment is made in full, this does not mean that the Client acknowledges the correctness of the performance of the services nor waives the warranty or guarantee rights.

If the Provider fails to eliminate the deficiency or defect, the Client is entitled to:

- withdraw from the order in whole or in part without compensation,
- request price reduction,
- repair the defect itself, buy new goods and services or entrust the supply to a third person at the expense of the Provider,
- claim compensation instead of fulfilling the obligation.

The Provider bears the costs and risk of damage and destruction for the return of defective or deficient goods or services.

The Client is not obliged to pay for the goods and services subject to complaint (defect, hidden defect or deficiency).

The consequences of disturbances that occur in the business process due to poor quality of the shipment, quantity or another defect are borne by the Provider. The costs are calculated individually for each case.

The Provider must immediately inform the Client of any defect or deficiency in the goods or services which it is aware of, with the aim of limiting any subsequent harmful consequences. The Provider must cover all legal costs, other costs and damage incurred to the Client that are in any way related to the delivered goods and services, which are the subject of the complaint.

All forms of complaints, the existence of factual and legal errors is resolved using interpretation rules laid down in the Code of Obligations.

Unless otherwise agreed, the Provider shall issue a twelve (12) month warranty for goods and services. In the event of a complaint, the warranty period begins to run again after the defect or deficiency has been rectified.

The Provider undertakes to provide assistance to the Client in the event of litigation concerning the goods and services supplied and to provide it immediately with the name of the manufacturer, importer, subsupplier or subcontractor involved in the performance of the order and with all necessary information to defend against claims arising from the product warranty, and all necessary documentation related to the delivered goods and services.

The Provider shall be obliged to provide the Client with the spare parts for the supplied goods for at least ten (10) years after fulfilling the obligation.

If the Provider intends to stop the production of spare parts for the delivered goods, it must inform the Client immediately or no later than six (6) months before the cessation of production.

2.8 Deadline for fulfilment of obligations and contractual penalty

Unless otherwise agreed by the parties to the order, the day on which the Client has placed the order with the Provider shall be considered as the start of the period to fulfil the obligation. The fulfilment of obligation is deemed timely if it is delivered to the location of performance agreed in the order, or the acceptance is made in accordance with the agreement included in the order (time and place of acceptance).

In the event of a potential delay in the fulfilment of the obligation, the Provider may, by registered letter, propose to the Client an extension of the deadline for fulfilling the obligation. After examining the eligibility for extending the deadline for the fulfilment of the obligation, the Client decides whether the Provider's proposal:

- is accepted and the deadline for fulfilling the obligations is extended as proposed;
- is accepted, but a different deadline for the fulfilment of obligation than proposed is determined; or
- is rejected.

The Client shall communicate its decision to the Provider in writing.

Unless otherwise agreed in the order, the Client is entitled to charge the Provider a contractual penalty of 0.5% of the total value of the order for each calendar day of delay, but not more than 20% of the total value of the order. The Client shall retain the right to request the compensation for damages that exceed the contractual penalty amount. The Client shall retain the right to the contractual penalty even if the Client accepts the delayed fulfilment of obligation. The Provider shall pay the contractual penalty within thirty (30) days. The Provider waives the reduction of the contractual penalty.

2.9 Intellectual property protection and disclosure of confidential information

With the completed payment, the Provider transfers all its material copyrights to the Client once and for all and for all cases. The transferred rights include the Client's right to use the product, publish and distribute it in an electronic, printed or any other form and to use it in any other way. The author shall separately transfer to the Client the material copyright for processing the work in such a way that the Client is allowed to supplement it or modify it by using new or modified data and needs and that it is allowed to use the work or its parts at its own discretion. The author shall guarantee that it has the right to transfer material copyrights to the Client in the way and scope defined under this item, otherwise it shall be held responsible for all incurred loss.

Materials, samples, etc. that the Client makes available to the author for the purpose of the execution of the order shall remain in the ownership of the Client and shall be stored, marked and managed separately. The costs associated with this as well as the risk of destruction or damage of the material shall be borne by the author. The materials may only be used to carry out the order. The reserved right of the author on the materials is excluded.

The Provider warrants that the supplies, use of the goods, the services of its suppliers, the patents and copyrights of the Client which submitted the documentation will not be infringed. The Provider also undertakes to treat the orders and the work necessary for the execution as a business secret, as well as to reimburse the Client for any damage that would occur due to non-compliance with this provision.

By accepting the order, the Provider agrees to accept the undertaking not to disclose business information, data and business secrets (hereinafter: confidential data) to unauthorised third parties as well as unauthorised employees of the Provider who have no direct interest or participate in the processing of confidential data (hereinafter: unauthorised persons). The purpose of the parties to the order is to prevent significant damage that could occur to the Client in the event of disclosure of confidential information to unauthorised persons.

The Provider and the Client undertake to maintain the confidentiality of the confidential information they obtain from each other on a permanent basis and undertake not to disclose it to unauthorised persons or to use it in any way other than to carry out the order and to protect it by the degree of diligence they apply to their own confidential information, which is similar in nature to the order. The Provider and the Client shall limit access to confidential information only to those involved in carrying out the order.

Confidential information may only be used for the business cooperation in which it has been obtained.

Under this agreement, confidential information that has the nature of a trade secret or represents a secret or confidential piece of data includes any data (e.g. information, technical specifications, drafts, sketches, pictures, specifications, standards, operating instructions, constructions, reports, forms, processes, information, lists, patents, trademarks, trade secrets, computer programs, software, databases and software documentation, confidential business information containing information, know-how, information of a financial, pricing or marketing nature relating to business operations of any party to the order who discloses confidential information), transmitted in any form (materialised in the form of documents, software, promotional or presentational material, equipment or pilot projects, and dematerialised when presented verbally and identified as confidential) or through any means (verbal or written: encoded, graphical or in any other tangible form, including any electronic, magnetic or optical form).

Confidential information does not include information that is publicly available. The request for protection of confidential data from these Terms of Cooperation ceases on the day when it or part of this data becomes public.

The Provider and Client undertake to protect the confidential information obtained within this business cooperation as a diligent manager and shall ensure that their employees involved in the business cooperation are aware of the provisions of these Terms of Cooperation so that they will protect the information provided and will know about its confidentiality. The provisions of these Terms of Cooperation are also binding for them.

The Provider and the Client are aware that any breach of the provisions of this section may cause irreparable loss to the other party. Therefore, the party who remains committed to this agreement has the right to seek judicial protection, whereby it requests from the other party to immediately cease any potential or actual breach of these Terms of Cooperation. In addition, any party in breach of the provisions of this section shall pay to the counterparty compensation of any pecuniary or non-pecuniary damage arising from the breach, and shall return any undue gain.

The obligation to protect confidential information does not cease if the Provider or the Client withdraw from the business cooperation. In case this business cooperation is terminated, the Provider and the Client shall immediately return all documentation and data to one another.

- obtaining an order; or
- concluding an order on more favourable conditions; or

- omit due supervision of the implementation of an order, or
- other conduct or omission which has or may have caused damage to the counterparty or made it possible to obtain undue advantage to any employee and member of the management or supervisory bodies of the counterparty.

Under warranty obligations, the Provider is obliged to ensure the Client free-of-charge access to all versions of the software containing corrections (i.e. “updates”). Unless otherwise agreed, the Provider must hand over the source code on an appropriate electronic medium (DVD, etc.) to the Client for the delivered software at the latest upon handover. The Client shall obtain the software copyrights for the entire world for the period defined by the legislation of the Republic of Slovenia concerning the copyright and in unlimited scope. All payments for material copyrights are presumed to be already included in the contractual payments under the order.

The Client shall have the right to transfer software copyrights forward whether in return for payment or free of charge without the Provider's consent.

If the Provider develops the software based on software from other producers (e.g. Microsoft, IBM, Oracle, etc.), the Provider shall ensure that the Client is entitled to modify the developed software; however; the Provider shall not be obliged to submit the original code for the software made by these other producers.

By accepting the order, the Provider agrees to be aware of the Client's activity and is aware that:

- the Client is subject to constant supervision by auditors, the Insurance Supervision Agency (ISA), the Croatian Financial Services Supervisory Agency (HANFA) and other competent supervisory authorities and agrees to enable a possible audit or control of the ordered goods and services;
